More about Alaska Marine Conservation Council:

AMCC formed in 1994 with the mission to protect the integrity of Alaska's marine ecosystems and promote the health of ocean-dependent coastal communities. Through education, outreach, fisheries policy advocacy and market-based approaches, we work with hundreds of dedicated members and allies to minimize the negative impacts of Alaska's industrial-scale seafood industry, climate change and ocean acidification and bolster the positive impacts of small-scale fisheries on marine biodiversity, coastal community integrity and local economies.
